District supports fungus study to help control Melaleuca

A native fungus, that goes by the name Botryosphaeria ribis, could join the weapons used to fight the growing spread of the melaleuca tree, a non-native and invasive pest that threatens the south Florida environment.

As part of its efforts to find ways to eradicate the invasive tree, the Governing Board of the South Florida Water Management District voted to fund the first year of a three-year, $135,000 research project being conducted at the University of Florida, Department of Forestry.

The fast spreading melaleuca has already displaced areas of the Everglades. So far, only the time consuming, labor-intensive application of herbicides has proven successful in slowing the tree's expansion. Currently under quarantine in Gainesville are two bugs, the sawfly and a weevil, both known to be natural enemies of the melaleuca.

Both are viewed as promising biocontrol methods to help eradicate the tree. If the fungus studies prove successful, the bugs may be used to help transport the fungus throughout melaleuca forests.

The fungus study, being conducted by Roger Webb, PhD, will center on field sampling and lab culture methods specific to this organism. District support of the study will allow for the fungus to be inoculated into trees to determine the effectiveness of biocontrol through injection. Early lab tests show the fungus to be successful in killing young greenhouse seedlings. The fungus is suspected to have killed some melaleuca trees on its own in the Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge.

In the past year, the District has committed over one and a half million dollars towards various melaleuca control initiatives.

Local growers pitch in to buy city new fire truck

By BRENDA BUNTING
SUN Editor

Several companies in the Glades have pitched in to help the City of Belle Glade purchase a new fire truck.

Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative led the effort by donating $100,000 toward the purchase of the $702,000 truck.

"We're very, very grateful to George Wedgworth, the Co-op and everyone who is helping us," said Lomax Harrelle, city manager. "We couldn't have done this without their help."

City officials announced the gifts from local growers at Monday night's commission meeting. U.S. Sugar donated $50,000, Flo Sun agreed to give $10,000 a year for five years, A. Duda and Sons gave $6,800 and Tailsman Sugar Corp gave $500.

Mayor Bill Bailey said the city will need to borrow $40,000 additional dollars over four years to purchase the truck.

The $40,000 is being loaned to the city by the Co-op. Mayor Bailey said as they money comes in Flo-Sun's donation each year, it will be repaid to the Co-op with interest.

The mayor complimented Harrelle for his work in getting the donations for the truck. "I know you put in a lot of hard work in getting the funding for a new fire truck," he said.

The truck will be ordered and should be in by September or the first of October, said Harrelle.

"This is really needed," he said. "A lot of our fire trucks are getting old and we cover a large area - from the unincorporated areas, west of 20-Mile Bend to the Broward County line and to the Hendry County line."

Co-op President George Wedgworth said his company made the substantial donation because we have a business interest right outside the City of Belle Glade and many of our workers are citizens in Belle Glade.

"Besides, Mr. Harrelle told me the city was broke and needed the truck. We've had a close association with the City of Belle Glade for 33 years. We were glad to help," he said.

Fire Chief Tony Tulliano said the additional pumper truck will be a real boost to the department.

"We're very excited. Hopefully, this will replace a 1956 pumper truck we have been using," he said.

State Fire Marshal, police investigating fire at Rutledge Motel

By BRENDA BUNTING
SUN Editor

The State Fire Marshal's office is saying an arsonist set fire to the Rutledge Motel Tuesday afternoon.

Belle Glade Police are investigating the fire that occurred at the rooming house, located 116 South Main Street, Belle Glade.

Fire fighters were called to the motel at 12:18 p.m., June 15 to put out a fire in two locations - the first floor of the building.

Fire Chief Tony Tulliano said an apartment and the motel office were burning when fire fighters arrived. No one was in the building at the time. Chief Tulliano said only two of the rooms were rented at this time of year. "The fire was brought under control in about 10 minutes," said Chief Tulliano, who added that one fire fighter received minor injuries to his hand while putting out the blaze.

Police Chief Michael Miller said evidence at the scene leads police to believe that multiple fires were set in an attempt to cover up two burglaries in the building.

"We have some suspects and we're following up several good leads at this time," he said.

No estimate on the amount of damage has been given. The motel is owned by local residents Homer and Dolly Hand. The Hands were out of town at the time of the fire.

None of the team's members were able to utilize their fine athletic talents on the court this past basketball season at Pahokee High School because of bad grades and discipline problems.

The game of basketball and competing in an event like the Sunshine State Games the teens will hopefully redirect their energies in more positive endeavors.

The team is seeking donations to help fund their trip to the Games.

For more information on how to help contact Pahokee Parks and Recreation at 924-2972.

Don't trash our world...Students at Gove Elementary put on a musical play to a packed house a few weeks ago. The theme of the play was about the environment and how everyone can help keep the planet clean.

Gove students put on musical play about the environment

On May 18, students and faculty at Gove Elementary had a full house in the cafeteria to see a musical play put on by the third, fourth and fifth grade students under the direction of Mrs. Carol Schmidt.

The theme of the play was about keeping the environment clean and Mr. Rayburn White and Mrs. Mira Dale's classes exhibited student art work in the Media Center in keeping with the theme.

Many teachers displayed student class work and projects in the hallways of Gove.

The Florida State Legislature mandated that all schools develop a school improvement plan by the School Advisory Council. Participation in the School Advisory Council was open to all Gove staff, parents and community leaders.

The board presented the environmental theme to the School Advisory Council, made up of Sharon Underwood, SAC

Chairperson and parent; Annette Gray and Vivian Ross, Co-chairs and teachers, Belinda Perkins, business partner and parent and teachers Rachel Hollingsworth, Gloria Lively and Clarice Davis.

The SAC Team spent many months studying the needs of the school, student test scores and the school's strengths and weaknesses. All teachers, staff, business people and parents were encouraged to attend meetings and actively participate to reach a consensus on all decisions.

The plan is available in the main office at Gove if anyone wishes to review the information. Penny Lopez, Principal; Glennie Davis, Assistant Principal; or Annette Gray, teacher will be glad to answer any questions. Other members of the SAC team will also be glad to answer questions.

Due to receiving the Chapter 1 School-Wide project, Gove will be receiving two additional teachers and extra funding for materials. The school will be able to use all 10 Chapter 1 teachers and funds throughout the school.

Previously, Chapter 1 funds and eight Chapter 1 teachers allocated could only be used in grades 1-3. The SAC team determined by consensus to spread the teachers out and have fewer students in a classroom. Aides will be used in kindergarten and first grade classrooms. In each classroom, students will be heterogeneously grouped (a mix of high, middle, and low achievers) so that the latest teaching strategies may be used to raise test scores school wide.

The whole language approach, collaborative team teaching, cooperative learning, teaching reading with novels and peer coaching are some of the teaching techniques which will be used.

The sciatic nerve proceeds from the lower back area down through the entire leg. Pinching of the sciatic nerve is accompanied by a dull, deep throbbing pain in the lower back and continues in hot, sharp, stabbing flashes over the buttocks to the thighs, down the calf of the leg and into the heel and toes.

Only in America

I find it appalling that President Clinton would allow over 140 HIV positive Haitians in to this country with all the problems we already have. What is wrong with the man?

These people will need a lot of medical care that we can not even provide for our own countrymen and the possibility of the spread of the disease grows with the numbers of infected people.

When will our government wake up and realize we aren't giving the American dream to others less fortunate, just killing the American dream for all of us.

Only in America could something like this happen. You don't see other countries opening their arms to AIDS infected people.

Good for South Bay

I see where South Bay is going to be getting a new RV park and facilities up near the levy. I'm glad to see our town making some progress.

It's been a long time coming, but South Bay needs to grow. I've never understood why, with all the traffic in South Bay, why businesses aren't thriving here.

I hope we can start offering more to get people to stop and spend a little money in our town. I'd like to see South Bay prosper.

Spenders VS. Savers: Who'll Win The Battle

In the aftermath of President-elect Clinton's announcement of his mixed-bag economic team and his high-visibility economic summit, a number of questions beg to be asked regarding the Clinton gang and the Capitol crowd. Can the deficit-cutters live with the stimulus packagers? Who will win? Why?

For now, avoid deficit-cutters—such as Office of Management and Budget officials Leon Panetta and Alice Rivlin—are peacefully coexisting with Clinton appointees favoring spending-based "investment" strategies, most notably Robert Reich, who heads the Department of Labor. The politicians on the team, who clearly were chosen for their process skills, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen leaps to mind, have not yet tipped their hands as to which side they will support.

It's safe to say that the spenders, not the savers, are the odds-on favorites when the going inevitably gets tough. But if they do win, it likely will be more a consequence of budget dynamics in Congress than of the president-elect's inability to keep his economic team cohesive. Here's why.

For some time, congressional staff has had the capability of producing nearly instantaneous district-based impact analyses of any tax-and-spend proposal put before the House or Senate. Inside the Beltway, this is affectionately known as "printout politics."

Huge data bases exist that can display the income, employment, age, gender, racial/ethnic and political characteristics of each congressional district. For every tax change proposed by the president-elect, it is possible to calculate what the impact will be on the people and the economy of an individual member's home district.

Even among congressional Democrats, there are vast differences in the profiles of the districts they represent. This often translates into markedly different policy preferences and priorities, especially when it comes to the "T-word"—taxes.

Thus all the hype about a friendly Democratic Congress ready to pass whatever President Clinton proposes will undoubtedly turn out to be naively optimistic. The more complex the president's tax proposals, the less likely political party affiliation will be the key determinant of how a Congress member votes.

Congress will put a brake on the president's deficit-reduction proposals almost as soon as they hit the floor, especially those that could possibly translate into less spending.

Nothing will drive home the district-based nature of congressional budgetary decisions more than the fallout Clinton will observe from proposals designed to get entitlements "under control."

For example, members from Florida—Democrats and Republicans alike—will find it difficult to support proposals to change eligibility requirements or funding levels for Social Security and Medicare in light of the age profile of the state and the political clout of the elderly. For those representing other districts and states, major entitlement stumbling blocks may be student loans, veterans' disability payments, Medicaid, home mortgage interest deductions or other equally popular sacred cows.

Like it or not, cuts in these entitlements are the unavoidable major key to serious deficit reduction.

This means, of course, that the reality of how policy proposals play in the home district will be of greater importance to most Congress members than affiliation when considering the president's plans. After all, Congress members get rewarded most by demonstrating what they can bring home to the district, not by showing how they "saved" the American electorate at large through cutting of eliminating programs.

There is virtually nothing a president of his economic team can do to change this political fact of life. Thus, Clinton, representing a vastly larger and more diverse constituency than individual members, may find his proposals at loggerheads with the congressional majority many expect to befriend him.

Of the Clinton team, Bentsen is the most likely to understand and accept that. The academics and ideologues on the team will have more difficulty dealing with it. So will team members from the private sector who are used to rational economic arguments carrying the day in budget decision-making.

The propensity to increase spending is not just a congressional phenomenon. It is often evident at the individual department or program level and is a product of a long trend of expansion in the public sector.

For years it has been true that administrators who get the most respect and the highest salaries are those who head the largest departments. The effect has been to create an incentive for public administrators to expand their operations.

Our history of failing to reward administrators who may spend less than their departments' total budgetary allocations. In far too many federal agencies (state and local, too), there is still too much evidence of last-minute, high-volume, non-bid purchasing at the end of the fiscal year.

A good manager is perceived as one who spends exactly what he has been allocated. In short, we have developed no clear means of rewarding administrators who run their operations more efficiently. The "spend or lose it" principle prevails.

We sorely lack any in-depth knowledge of how to budget "in reverse." Unfortunately, it is unlikely that sound, effective budget retrenchment techniques will emerge from the federal budgetary process.

Balancing the budget is not required by law, and Congress itself has more motivation to spend it all, and then some, than to raise taxes or cut popular programs and risk losing political capital back home. And with the economy showing tentative signs of growth, Clinton's team may be loath to stymie it by introducing a meaningful deficit-reduction package.

It's not even a close call—the deficit-cutters lose again.

Glades Youth Academic-Recreational Agricultural Program in need of sponsors

The Glades Youth Academic-Recreation-Agricultural Program is in need of sponsors to help the Summer Youth Program. This program will be the first of its kind to service the Glades area.

The majority of the kids who will register for the summer programs, come from underprivileged families who reside in Belle Glade, South Bay and Pahokee communities of all nationalities. Those children will become victims of drive by shootings, gang members or kids will always have to be on the side line watching and never be able to demonstrate their athletic and academic ability.

Therefore, we are in need of your support to help sponsor the program and allow them to be able to participate in this summer's academic, agricultural and recreation program. We are asking for a donation of $500 or equipment to help support this program. If you cannot donate the requested amount, any amount you wish to give will be greatly appreciated.

If you any questions, please feel free to contact Valerie Harrell at 996-8087 or 996-4960.

West Tech has Employer Appreciation Luncheon

The Third Annual Employer Appreciation Luncheon was held at West Technical Education Center, by the Transition from School to Work Program. On May 26, students and staff honored the employers who have been so helpful in making the program a success this year.

The program consists of four phases that enable special education students to enter the world of work. Three of the steps depend entirely on the support of the community to make the program work.

The work center area of the program takes place on campus. The younger students participate in a variety of tasks provided by various businesses. Students learn how to put together packets of rice, muck and sugar, used as souvenirs by the Chamber of Commerce; boxes are constructed for Pizza Hut; and brochures are put together for Lion Country Safari.

At community based sites, students work with their teacher, Robert Hart, to master skills required for real jobs. Each site provides numerous opportunities for the students to learn specific job skills and appropriate behavior.

Students also are given the advantage of discovering their job preferences. During the training site phase of the program, the students are not paid. The business is, in effect, their classroom. All of the students are able to learn by doing, not reading about it. This also gives the employer an opportunity to observe a student working before making a commitment to hire.

The ultimate goal of the program is supported competitive employment. The Transition Specialist, Sue Curtis, places the student on a paid job and supervises training until the student is able to perform independently. Nearly all of the students are employed a year prior to graduation. At graduation, they are referred to an agency for follow along for life.

Without the support of local businesses, these young people might not be able to work and become contributing members of society. Local businesses who have participated as work sites are, West Care Senior Citizen's Center, U-Seve, Western Auto and the Alzheimers Association.

West Tech graduate William Chilson was recognized at the Employer Appreciation Luncheon for participating in the Work Program at the school and for getting a full time job in the cafeteria at Glades Central Community High School. Giving him his certificate is Supervisor Catherine Henry.

Mrs. Bains represented the Glades Area Cosmetologist Unit #14, of which Mrs. Annie L. Hillery is the advisor.

The Glades Area Cosmetologist Unit #14 would like to thank the Glades community for all their support which assisted Mrs. Bains in winning the contest. A special thanks is given to the parents for working with the Little King and Queen Contest held in the month of October 1992. Miss Anisha Henry of Wellington was crowned the queen and Little Mr. Jason Hunter of Belle Glade was crowned the King. Other participants were Donte Williams, Sterling Hammond Harrison, Camille Forde, Bonsha Brereton, and Erin Brooke Cross.
